

Kalyn Siebert Launches VersaMAXX™ – Low-Profile Bus/Large Vehicle Transport and Recovery Trailer

Gatesville, TX – (September 26, 2017) – Premium heavy-duty trailer manufacturer Kalyn Siebert has announced production of a new low-profile trailer designed specifically for large vehicle transport and recovery operations in metros and locations that demand the utmost in capacity, versatility, maneuverability and ease of use.

The VersaMAXX™ trailer features a 100,000-lb-capacity and an adjustable hydraulic removable gooseneck (HRG), along with two 20,000-lb-capacity winches with wireless remotes that make single-operator loading possible. Designed to meet the demands of low approach angles in loading and providing a low deck height to accommodate taller vehicles, the new VersaMAXX™ offers a low 22-inch deck height while still providing six inches of ground clearance.

“This trailer makes operations of this kind possible—as well as safe and efficient. All designed around a single operator,” said Jake Radish, Kalyn Siebert President. “Having the durability and reliability of a premium Kalyn Siebert trailer and knowing it can recover large vehicles with low loading approaches and transport them safely with a low overall height is what VersaMAXX™ is all about.”

Because of these features, VersaMAXX™ will appeal to a range of operators transporting buses, construction equipment, fire and rescue equipment, class A motorhomes, trucks or any combination of the above.

The VersaMAXX™ trailer will be shown at the Baltimore Tow Show, Booth 1197, November, 17-19, 2017. For more information about the VersaMAXX™ trailer, visit KalynSiebert.com.
